FROM THE PREACHER'S DESK

BY: DAVID OLMOS

Balancing structure and discipline with the fun and excitement of being a child can be challenging as a parent. When you see your child playing and imagining themselves as pirates or princesses in a sea full of monsters or a tall castle in the woods, it's essential to teach them right from wrong and follow the rules, but often" It's gut reaction flows from our lips when we yell, "STOP JUMPING!" These moments are precious, and as our children grow older, we cherish them all the more. We know that someday, they will stop pretending to be pirates or freezing us with their magic powers, so we want to savor these moments for as long as possible.

As parents, we all must accept that a day will come when our children won't need us to tuck them in at night anymore when they stop jumping off the couch with their paper wands in hand. However, that doesn't mean we can't enjoy playing with them while they're still young. I know this day is coming as a parent because it came for me as a child. I remember the days when I used to play with Ninja Turtles and snuggle with my mom, but before I knew it, I had "grown-up." I often wonder how my mother felt that day. As Mother's Day approaches, I want to thank all moms out there for their sacrifices for their families and spiritual communities. As a son, I know firsthand how much love and dedication go into raising a child. So to my mom, Thank You! And to all the mothers in this congregation, thank you for everything you do! I hope you enjoy this Mother's Day poem that perfectly sums up my appreciation for all you do. May God bless you today and always.

"Dear Mother"

By Herman Vymislicky
I'm writing you to tell you that I love
you, something I hardly ever do.
I never tell you enough how much I love you and it's something I must do.

I need to let you know mother how much you really mean to me so I'm telling you now you mean the world to me. I need to thank you for all you do for me.

Your unconditional love toward me means a lot to me. You've never turned your back on me and I know it's something you'll never do.
Anytime I need someone to talk to you're always there to help me through. And anytime I need a favor you always seem to be there, too. There's nothing in this world that I could do To pay you back for all you do.

When God gave me to you, that's the best thing he could ever do, so this poem is dedicated to you because I don't know how else to say Thank You.
